In the year of Rome 557, T. Quinctins Flaminius, Consul, having overthrown Philip of blacedon at the battle of Cynoscephalae, in Thessaly, compelled him to a termination of the war and a surrender of Auction sales and Brokers'ss all dominion over the Grecian States. At the celebration of the Isthurian games.

the following decree or proclamation was

"The Roman Senate and S. T. Quinctius, inversitor, conquerors of Philip and the Macedoniana, re-establish in the enjoyment of their liberty, their laws and privileges, the Corinthians, the Phociana, the Levians, the island of Enboca, the Magnetos, the Thessalians, the Perrischi and the Achsians of Phthiotis."

Unexpected by the Grecians, who regarded the result of the war as merely inolving a change of masters, when the herald had pronounced the words, they could not believe it until it had been a second time proclaimed to the multitude. Then the assembly was overcome with joy, and lost in surprise and admiration at the magnanimity of the Romans and of the Consui ninins, who was present, and was at once almost overwhelmed with demonstrations of thanks and gratitude.

Let Andrew Johnson proclaim:

1. The people of the United States and addrew Johnson President "The people of the United States and Andrew Johnson, President, conquerors of Jeff. Davis and the Confederate armies, restablish in the enjoyment of liberty, their laws and privileges, the people af Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Arkausas, Louislana, Texas, Misslasippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina."

Then, as with the Grecians, will the peo-ple of the South be tonched with the gran-licome, 3 and 5 per cent... dear of the act, and Andrew Johnson will live as the Flaminius of their history. And as the grand stroke of statosmanship which liberated Greece gave twofold strength to Roman arms and power, and led directly to Watches Yachts. the conquest of Asia, and to her dominion for centuries as mistress of the world, so onid a general proclamation of amnesty, legacies and successions. would a general proclamation of amnesty, ably fix the destinies of America. If history is visitosouby teaching by example, the present, surely, is an opportunity which puld pot be lost in demonstrating that other truth, so often quoted and verified. that history also repeats itself.

In his late speech, Beast Butler was much more spiteful and hamb upon General Lee than upon Jeff. Davis, and thought him Lee bottled him up and clipped his military laurels, therefore he never can forgive him. We trust that Lee will never see the speech. It would make him fool so bad.

The proceedings of Congress since the recess, though interesting and instructive, furnish nothing from which the people of the South, in their present anomalous condition, can device either encouragement or nope. An intercourse of two weeks with their constituents seems not to have proinced any change in the sentiments, or improvement in the temper, of the Republican majority. On the contrary, the mean ast for the present. He says : provement in the temper, of the Republi-can majority. On the contrary, the measures introduced, and the speeches made during the past weeks, evince, if possible, a greater degree of venom towards the South, and a stronger determination of purpose to retuse the restoration of the States, than were exhibited during the first weeks of the session. Several additional amend-torate to the Constitution have been proto the Constitution have been pro posed, and numerous bills and resolutions introduced for the further appression and humiliation of our people. thing else than a compromise. I, therefore still hold to the opinion expressed in form-er letters, that the Southern members of Congress will not be admitted to their seats

As to the true reason why the Southern Congressmen are not admitted, Mr. Langdon writes:

A prominent Radical remarked to a Sothern man, a few days since: 'If we could be assured that your Southern members would not act with the Democratic party, they would be admitted to-morrow.' And here is the ecret of the whole matier. It is not principle, it is not the good of the country, which they are contacting for, but is party—the preservation of party ascendancy, the perpetuation of party power. So long as the Southern States can be kept out of the Union, just so long will power be retained in the hands of the Republican party, but not one day longer. Hence the party necessity of keeping them out indefinitely, and it will be done if it can be done.

This is doubtless the true secret. Politi-

Time alone can demonstrate its with: but we have little doubt that he is correct, and thal whenever the Northern terances will be decidedly and unmistakably in favor of the restoration of the schemes. Or this point Mr. Langdon says: As remarked in former letters, the President can defeat their schemes, and I trust he will, ere long. But should we be disappointed in this, we must wait with patience for the people to speak through the ballot-box. The schooner struck upon a projecting rock, and in such a position that, happily for the passengers and erew, as well as aimost miraculously, they had only to step from the vasel to the rock, and were all saved. They also saved all their baggage and personal effects.

The volumes of the gale and the marvellousness of the escape may be inferred from the left that the vessel went to pieces within two hours rifer of riking.

The colombus made their way to Havand. From thence some went to Mexico, some returned to Florida, and some of them, whose name we did not learn—attributes the disaster to some defect in his compas.
